Julianne VanWagenen is a librarian director and PhD candidate in Italian studies at Harvard University and a principal at the Berkman Center for Internet and Society's metaLAB. Her dissertation, to be completed in May 2017, investigates modern mythologies as supported or deconstructed through song.